

“What did you hear in the War, Daddy?”

Songs and Stories from World War II

“What did you hear in the War, Daddy?” is a lively presentation of American popular songs from World War Two. Costumed in military uniforms reminiscent of a WW II USO show, songstress Dina Blade and pianist/vocalist Hans Brehmer weave a captivating musical program that is fascinating and fun, with audience interaction, memorabilia and anecdotal patter about radio, movies, Big Bands and dances in the wartime Swing Era. Guaranteed to get your feet tapping along while rekindling the magic of yesteryear!

*Suggested venues & audiences: theaters, libraries, festivals, reunions, senior events, luncheon clubs, Choirs, Ethnomusicology, English, Poetry, Literature, Music and American History classes (middle school through college)

*Performance length for all programs: approximately one hour (can be extended to two sets with intermission and a costume change)

*Number of performers: usually 2 (duo with voice and piano), but can be expanded up to a quintet (voice, piano or guitar, bass, drums and horn)

“Your show was an absolute SMASH!” –Loretta Herman, Librarian

Dina Blade Productions 206-524-8283
(more shows available-see website)

www.dinablade.com